Wide Trousers And 'Galluses' Mode For '27

Tailors Score Wearing of Light Topcoat and Hat with Evening Clothes.

Call for Starched Collar.

Man Who Wears Spats with Tan Shoes Held Beneath All Notice.

Hold Annual Convention.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 31 (AP)—Fashion's edict for the men who would uphold America's distinction as the best dressed nation on earth during 1927 was delivered to the annual convention of the National Association of Merchant Tailors of America recently by its fashion committee headed by A. Lincoln Stadler, of New York.

The committee found many small details of men's dress to frown upon and a number of careless practises to censure. Chief among the latter is the wearing of light colored overcoats and bright colored ties with evening clothes, a fault which the committee declared was "very noticeable." Another fault was the combination of the opera hat with the tuxedo or dinner jacket.

The Mode for 1927.

Correct and incorrect practises in dress were summarized as follows.

The top silk hat or opera hat should be worn with the tailcoat.

White waistcoats have given way to the black waistcoat for tuxedos.

Black shoes are the general favorites for town and business, while dark tans are the vogue for travel and country wear.

Very light tans or lemon colored shoes are never in good form at any time or place.

Spats are never correctly worn with tan shoes.

Gloves are a necessary adjunct, the various shades of tan being preferable

"Galluses" Return.

Suspenders are regaining their popularity and greatly aid the fit and hang of the trousers.

Starched collars, either in white or matched collars to colored shirts of unobtrusive pattern, are propore for town and business wear. The soft collar is recommended only for hot weather and country and sport wear.

Under the heading "the trend of style," the committee laid down the following general rules of fashion for the year

Coats—Full rounded chest and soft rolling fronts; shoulders broad without any attempt at exaggeration and ample width for comfort and ease, close fitting body, forming long waisted effect with sufficient fullness over hips to allow back to be with ease, thus forming slight drapery effect necessary to preserve fit and good appearance; collars set low and well rounded, higher gorge, collar and lapels of moderate width, sleeves fit well throughout and come over shirt cuffs, long sack coat with gradual return of center vent in back most favored.

Athletic Effect in Vests.

Waistcoats—Full chest and well defined waistline, producing athletic effect, without sacrificing comfort; single breasted, no collar most favored model; the "V" opening to be governed by individual taste, and last button to be placed at waistline, with points of ample length and cut well away to the form.

Trousers—Wide trousers are the vogue; styled to hang straight; full throughout the hips and legs and well fitted at the waist; plain bottoms recommended for dark and dressy materials and permanent "turn-ups" or cuffs for lighter colored fabrics, flannels, cheviots, summer materials and country and sports wear; knee widths 20½ to 21½ inches, bottom widths 17½ to 19 inches; increasing use of suspenders requires that trousers be fashioned higher in waist.

Pianist-Composer Pleases Audience in Sunday Concert

Sergei Rachmaninoff, in the third of the Steinert series of Sunday afternoon concerts at the Majestic Theatre yesterday, again demonstrated his mastery. His complete control over the instrument has seldom been better demonstrated than in the following programme:

Andantino and Variations,
Schubert-Tausig
Fantaisio "Wanderer" Schubert-Liszt
(a) Intermezzo, Opus 118 ...Brahms
(b) Ballade .....Brahms
(a) Rondo, Opus 16.....Chopin
(b) Nocturne .....Chopin
(c) Waltz .....Chopin
Fairy Tales .....Medtner
(a) F-Minor, Op. 26.
(b) B-Minor, Op. 20.
Prelude .....Rachmaninoff
Rakoczy March .....Liszt

Rather than draw upon compositions of his own he chose those which have been long established in the concert field. He did play a prelude of his own composition, albeit it was not the familiar one. The melodic quality of his own work was pronounced and he played it with emotional restraint.

Apparently Rachmaninoff revels in Chopin, for although there was no outward manifestation, the manner in which he played the composition indicated that Chopin enjoys some favor with Rachmaninoff. Every whim of Chopin seemed to be transported to the keyboard and the beauty of the works, which at times are involved in technique, was revealed to an appreciative audience.

Liszt was alone in the last number on the programme, he had no Schubert to add vivacity and the "Rakoczy March" was a heavy, dull composition which was correctly interpretated but lacked the life of preceding numbers.

Three encores, short bits, but nevertheless pleasing, were given in response to tremendous applause.

Simeon E. Baldwin, Once Governor of Connecticut, Dead

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 31 (AP)—The right to a "natural death" which Simeon E. Baldwin advocated throughout his later life, was realized by the venerable jurist and statesman, when he died at his home here yesterday from the infirmity of old age. On Feb. 5, he would have been 87 years old.

Starting his career as a corporation lawyer in 1862 he was appointed associate justice on the bench of the Connecticut Supreme Court. In 1867 he was made chief justice. It was not until 1918, when, because of his age he was retired from the bench, that he received the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and became the first representative of that party to serve as chief executive of the state since 1893. From 1869 to 1919, he was an active member of the faculty of the Yale School of Law. In 1876 he organized at Yale the first post-graduate course in any law school leading to the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the United Church of which ex-Governor Baldwin was a member.

Judge Baldwin is survived by a widow, two children, two grandchildren and a brother, George William Baldwin.

How Much Is Half?

ONE of the most satisfactory services which "The Laundry That Satisfies" offers as a solution of your Washday problems is called the Semi-Finish Service. But to more clearly express all that this service actually does, it should be named Louttit's "all-but-done" Service.

Everytring is washed and dried! the table linen, bed linen, handkerchiefs, towels—all the flat pieces — ironed; and the wearing apparel starched, ready for you to iron at home. And that is all that is left for you to do—just the ironing of the wearing apparel.

Certainly, if you have struggled through all the washing and ironing of the Family Wash at home — you would not say that it was only half done when there's nothing left to do but the ironing of the wearing apparel. Wouldn't you say it was all-but-done? And this very satisfactory Semi-Finish Service costs but 9c per pound and 1c a piece.
